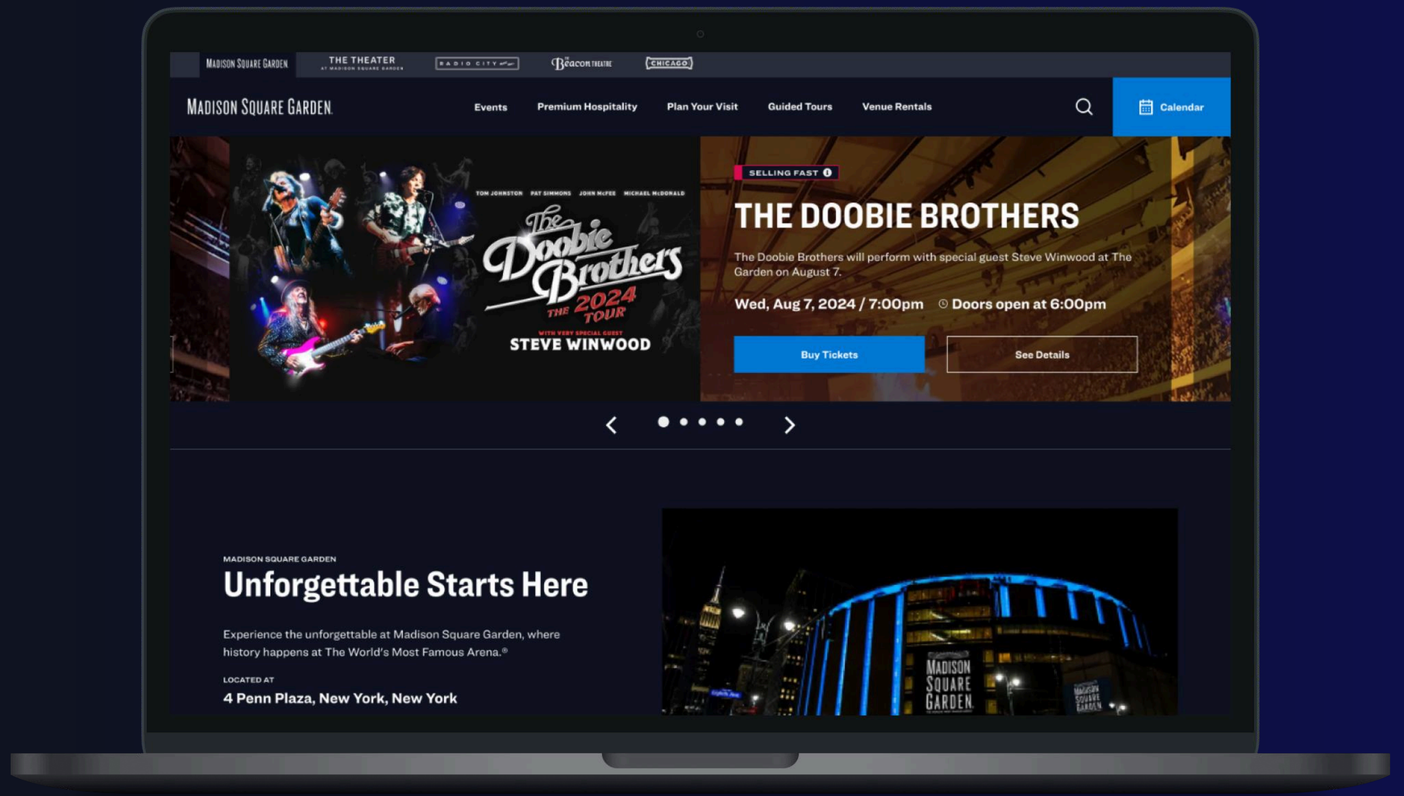
MSG.com Venue Landing Page Redesign



Team

- Collaborated with project designers, coordinators, and managers within the Digital Experience team
  - Also had cross-team communication with software engineering, marketing, and sports

- Led the project’s design process
  - Iterated through prototypes with team members using Figma
  - Conducted user research studies independently and collaboratively in UserTesting

Design Process

Problem

MSG.com users believe there’s an imbalance of event and venue information and show little click interactivity on the homepage.

Goals

- Improve the user experience
- Increase interactivity
- Have less repetitive content
- Maintain visual appeal
- Display more events
- List more information about events
- Showcase user engagement
- Increase SEO
- Promote MSG platforms

Iteration 1

We experimented with the homepage’s event information, venue information, and visual design according to the team’s user research and statistics.

Outcome

- The user research study showed that most users preferred the prototype over the current website.
  - 87.5% of users preferred the prototype overall.
- Users liked the use of icons and imagery
  - Icons pointed toward a more user-friendly and accessible design
- They also liked how the events were displayed and organized.
  - People could more easily find an event they liked directly from the homepage
- Users had a positive reception toward the social media integration at the bottom.

- I presented the prototypes and findings to the Digital Experience team and our project stakeholders and the project will continue to develop throughout the fiscal year.
